

Cynthia Way

Department of Defense

Email Cynthia

General Responsibilities:

Provides membership educational resources, educates membership on certification/competency model. Promote recognition of and respect for the chapter and its membership within the Omaha and Nebraska business communities.

Bio: Cynthia Way is proud to have served on the ASTD Board for 2 years and is looking forward to continuing her service in 2012. After seven years in the U.S. Navy, Cynthia worked in the veterinary industry in a myriad of capacities. She then became a private Organizational Development Sustainability Consultant where she lead a variety of sustainability and organizational development initiatives. Cynthia currently works at the Department of Defense as a Human Resource Development

Specialist where she is an integral part of the senior executive leadership development program.

Cynthia is a Certified Professional in Human Resources (PHR), has a Master's degree in Organizational Leadership, and is currently attending The George Washington University to obtain a Doctorate in Human and Organizational Learning with a focus on environmental/social sustainability leadership through aesthetic education.

Cynthia has been published in ASTD National's Infoline series. She is also the project manager and researcher for the The George Washington University ELP Sustainability Research Project, for which findings have been presented at the Academy of Human Resource Management conference in February 2011 and March 2012. She will also be presenting a paper on aesthetic judgement and sustainability leadership at the 2012 European Society for the Education of Adults in Denmark.University.